National Portrait Gallery

In the Museum, I See...

A Social Story
I am going to a museum.

Picture of me:
The museum is called the National Portrait Gallery. It is a big building with lots of art.
I can make art, too.

Art in the museum:

My art:
Outside of the museum I may see a cowboy on a big blue horse.
In the museum I may see a desk with friendly people.
I may see security guards in the museum. Security guards keep me safe.
I may see signs in the museum. Signs keep me safe.
In the museum I may see art called portraits. A portrait shows us what a person looks like.
A portrait can be a painting, a sculpture, a photo, or many other things.
I may see a portrait of Benjamin Franklin.
I may see a portrait of Booker T. Washington.
I may see people like me. These people are looking at art, too.
I may see a courtyard with water on the floor.
I am going to a museum. I know what I might see:

- a big blue horse
- a desk with friendly people
- security guards
- signs
- art called portraits
- people like me
- a courtyard.

I will see many other things, too!
